12:45 pm 0.75 hr	Twitter's Lawsuit Against Elon Musk: A Lesson on the Limits of Boilerplate M&A Agreements Is specific performance a sensible remedy for breach of a merger agreement, and thus a provision that should be included in the typical deal? Certainty can be important and efficient, but forcing a deal against the will of a party is not without cost. What are the alternatives to specific performance terms, and why do Delaware courts seem increasingly willing to enforce specific performance? M. Todd Henderson, The University of Chicago Law School - Chicago, IL

1:30 pm	15-Minute Break
1:45 pm 1.00 hr	It's Not Easy Being Green: Energy Dealmaking in a Decarbonizing Future As ESG regulatory and public pressures mount, dealmakers in the energy industry have been forced to reevaluate how they approach M&A transactions. Be it sourcing deals and capital, structuring and diligizing transactions, or broadening investment mandates, the rules have changed for doing deals in a decarbonizing environment. Moderator: J.
