"I'm not here to take away your guns—I'm here to sell you some overpriced insurance."

INCREASING USE OF R&W INSURANCE IN DEALS

ADVANTAGES TO USING A R&W POLICY

- Transfers risk away from both seller and purchaser
- Potentially increases purchase price to seller by reducing contingent liability risk
- Protects passive sellers who have not controlled or been actively involved in the management of the target business from unintentional non-disclosure or breach of representations and warranties
- Eliminates obstacles to getting a deal done over indemnity term negotiations (e.g., survival periods, escrow, caps, baskets, materiality scrapes, etc.)
- Enhances protections of buyer for breaches of representations and warranties, supplementing or replacing entirely the indemnification provided by sellers
- Can effectively extend duration of representations and warranties, permitting more time to detect and report problems
- Eases concerns about ability to collect indemnification from single or multiple sellers
- Protects relationships with sellers who may become key employees or business partners post-closing
- Typically covers insured's cost of defense
- Can protect buyer against successor liability risk
- In distressed M&A can make up for a financially insecure seller
