Choice of Entity – What is the Context?

- New Business.
- Existing Business: Restructure or convert? Is the current structure the optimal structure for tax purposes or should it change its structure to improve its tax result (by, for example, becoming a C corporation)?
- Dependent Upon Client Projections ("we'll be IPOing next year!!").
- Model results of structure
- · No one-size fits all

Choice of Entity: the Menu (Read Through Tax-Colored Glasses)

- Sole Proprietorship.
- Pass-through entities ("RPEs" in §1.199A-1(b)(9)).
  - S corporations.
  - Partnerships (LPs, GPs, LLPs, PTPs, LLCs).
  - Disregarded entities ("DREs").
- Corporate entities.
  - C corporations.
  - C corporations that qualify under section 1202.
- · Others.
  - PTPs.
  - REITs.
  - Cooperatives.

Tax Rates After Tax Reform

- C Corporation:
  - 21% rate.
  - No longer graduated.
  - Corporate alternative minimum tax repealed (AMT).
  - No favorable capital gains rate.
  - Effective rate on earnings distributed to shareholders is 36.8% (21% plus 20% on qualified dividend income of $79).
  - If earnings are not distributed, 21% rate becomes effective rate, but beware of numerous anti-abuse regimes.

Tax Rates After Tax Reform – Anti-Abuse

C Corporation:

- Caution: C corporations are subject to numerous anti-abuse regimes:
  - Personal holding company (IRC § 541).
  - Accumulated earnings tax (IRC § 531).
  - Personal service corporation (IRC §§ 170, 267, 269A, 280H, 441, 448).
  - Closely held corporation (or closely held C corporation) (IRC §§ 170, 465, 469).
- But IRC § 341 (collapsible corporation recharacterized as sale of ordinary income assets) is still dead.
