Lady Bird Deed (Enhanced Life Estate Deed)

- Purposes: (1) Avoid Medicaid estate recovery & (2) Avoid probate
- Common Law invalidated an interest commencing in the future.
- TX Property Code 5.041 makes it valid.
- Some title companies don't follow 5.041.
- Don't do business with them.

Transfer on Death Deed

- Purposes: Same as LBD-- (1) Avoid Medicaid estate recovery & (2) Avoid probate
- New Chapter 114, Texas Estates Code, eff. 09/ 01/ 2015
- HHSC: Has same effect as LBD on Medicaid eligibility (none) and estate recovery (avoids it)

Will a TODD Cut Off Title Insurance Protection?

- Unclear whether beneficiary of a TODD is an “insured” under title policy forms
- Warranty deed would make grantor liable for title defects—therefore protecting interests of grantee by allow grantor to claim on insurance
- LBD can be a warranty deed, TODD cannot.

Agent May Not Sign TODD

- Title companies dislike any deed signed by an agent—especially if the agent is grantee
- But if a Medicaid beneficiary has lost capacity, deed by an agent may be only way to avoid estate recovery
- Solution: Use power of attorney, provided agent will follow principal's estate plan; clean up title later, e.g. with Afft Hship or Family Settlement Agreement

TODD Will Not Trigger Due on Sale Clause

- Garn-St. Germain Act, 1701j-3: A LBD should not trigger DOS of seller's residence to a spouse or child of seller
- Problems: Some lenders threaten foreclosure anyway; Rule at 12 CFR 591(b) excepts reverse mortgages (likely invalid but troublesome)
- Result: If property has a mortgage, TODD will give you more peace of mind
