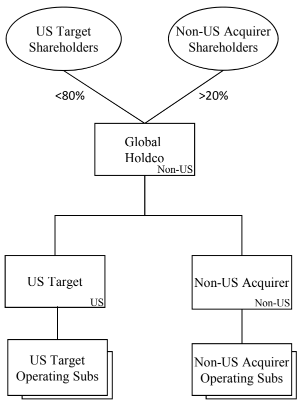
Basic Structure of Inversion Transaction

An inversion is a corporate reorganization where a new non-US Global Holdco acquires the stock of both the US Target and the Non-US Acquirer through a shareholder level share exchange

- The shareholders of US Target and Non-US Acquirer exchange their stock in US Target and Non-US Acquirer, respectively, for stock in new Global Holdco
- US Target and Non-US Acquirer continue as subsidiaries of Global Holdco



Tax Results

- If target shareholders receive ≤60% of acquiring stock, anti-inversion rules don't apply
  - No gain recognition by the U.S. corporation
  - U.S. shareholders may recognize gain on the exchange of shares under regularly applicable rules under section 367(a)
    - Generally no gain is recognized by <5% shareholders
    - Result is that shareholders in publicly traded corporations generally do not recognize gain because it would be unusual for any one shareholder to own 5% of the stock

Tax Results (2)

- If target shareholders receive ≥60% - 79.9% of acquiring stock,
  - U.S. shareholders subject to tax on gain even though no cash was received because the transfer of the shares is treated as a deemed taxable exchange
  - U.S. target company may not use any tax attributes for 10 years such as losses to offset its "inversion gain" it recognizes as a result of the transaction
  - Corporate executives may be subject to a 15% excise tax on their stock compensation
