

Key Issues in Corporate Transactions: Lessons Learned from Select Delaware Cases

The University of Texas School of Law
29th Annual Technology Law Conference
May 26-27, 2016, Four Seasons Hotel, Austin, TX

MODERATOR:
Wilson Chu, McDermott Will & Emery, Dallas, TX

PANELISTS:
Margot Carter, Living Mountain Capital LLC,
Dallas, TX
Lisa R. Stark, K&L Gates, Wilmington, DE

© Copyright 2016 by K&L Gates LLP. All rights reserved.

Are the Selling Stockholders Bound by the Indemnity ?

Cigna Health and Life Insurance Co. v. Audax Health Solutions, Inc.

- Post-closing indemnification obligations contained in a merger agreement were not enforceable against the target's stockholders if the obligations (1) put all the merger consideration at risk; and (2) were not limited in duration
- A release could not be imposed on the target's stockholders post-closing absent additional consideration

Cigna: Background

- Stockholder of target sought $46 million in merger consideration arising from the company's acquisition
- The merger agreement expressly conditioned receipt of the merger consideration on execution of a LoT
- Stockholders who had executed joinders or support agreements prior to closing were not asked to sign the LoT

Cigna: Background

- The LoT required stockholders to
 - Release acquirer for any claims associated with the merger
 - Indemnify acquirer for breaches of target's representations and warranties
 - Appoint a stockholders' representative
- Plaintiff refused to sign the LoT, claimed that the LoT was unenforceable and sought its merger consideration

Cigna Holding

- Indemnification obligations were unenforceable
 - DGCL Section 251 requires that a merger agreement specify the consideration to be received by the target's stockholders unless the shares are cancelled
 - The amount of merger consideration must be determinable

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Key Issues in Corporate Transactions: Lessons Learned from Select Delaware Cases

Also available as part of the eCourse

2016 Technology Law eConference

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 29th Annual Technology Law Conference session

"Key Issues in Corporate Transactions: Lessons Learned from Select Delaware Cases"