

Collision of Individual Rights in Schools

By Eric G. Rodriguez

Schools are Unique Settings

“School attendance can expose students to threats to their physical safety that they would not otherwise face.”

“Students may be compelled on a daily basis to spend time at close quarters with other students who may do them harm. Experience shows that schools can be places of special danger.”

Justice Alito: Frederick v. Morse (2007)

When Rights Collide

- School Safety vs. Appropriate Education
- Parents and Schools – Balancing Interests under the IDEA
- Competing Accommodations and Services Animals
- Student Expression and School Safety

Managing Student Behavior

- Considerations under the Student Code of Conduct
 - Self-defense
 - Intent or lack of intent
 - Student's discipline history
 - Disability the substantially impairs the student's capacity to appreciate the wrongfulness of conduct
- Removal of Student by Teacher
- FAPE and Behavior

The Dangerous Special Education Student

Wayne-Westland Community Schools v. V.S.

- School's request for injunction – preventing student to return to campus
- Amount of evidence presented established extreme risk of imminent and irreparable harm to students and staff

The Dangerous Special Education Student

Troy School District v. K.M.

- Also a request by School for an injunction preventing student's return to school
- School's failure in implementing IEP resulted in the Court's denial of School's request for injunction

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Collision of Individual Rights in Schools

Also available as part of the eCourse

Student Rights in 2017: Transgender Students, Special Education, Cameras in the Classroom, and More

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 32nd Annual School Law Conference session
"Collision of Individual Rights"