D. Depositions

16. There will be no in-person depositions conducted during the pandemic. Depositions should proceed forward using remote technologies that are widely available for conducting depositions either telephonically or by video conference. A variety of systems are available that allow for all participants to be physically separate and for real-time exhibit viewing to occur. Many court reporting services offer such platforms, and internet searches for "remote video depositions" and "remote telephonic depositions" will display alternatives.

17. The party noticing a deposition shall specify the platform to be used and the attorneys shall confer, if necessary, to agree on specific procedures that may be appropriate under the circumstances. That a deposition is noticed to be conducted remotely shall not be a basis for a

Selecting the Remote Depo Platform

- Try out different platforms offered by reporting firms to make sure platform selected is acceptable
- Be especially wary of “in-house” platforms that may not be well-designed or smoothly functioning
- Regardless of whether depo platform has video recording capability (Zoom does, others may not), still need certified videographer in order for video to be admissible at trial

Selecting the Remote Depo Platform

- Even if it is opposing party’s deposition, be proactive in coordinating selection of deposition platform/service
- Using an inferior platform/service can lead to:
 - longer depo due to delays in resolving technical issues
 - frustrated witness
 - unclear record, esp. if documents cannot be properly addressed
 - poor quality video that may create wrong impression for jury
