

Dealing With Digital Detractors: What You Need to Know About Responding to Negative Online Reviews

UT Law CLE
First Friday Ethics
July 2, 2021

1

Online Reputation is More Important for Attorneys Than Ever Before

- April 2014 study by FindLaw.com & Thomson Reuters
 - Internet is the most popular resource for people in need of legal services (38% would use the web first, while 29% would ask a friend or relative)
- 2014 study by Hinge Marketing shows 81% of people view a lawyer's website, 63.2% use an online search to find a lawyer

2

Who's Talking About You Online?

- Sites include AVVO.com, lawyerratingz.com, and others
- Consumer review sites, including Yelp and RipoffReport.com

3

How You Respond to an Online Review Can Lead to Disciplinary Action

- January 2014: Chicago employment lawyer Betty Tsamis gets reprimand for revealing confidential information in a public online forum by responding to a client's negative review on AVVO.com

4

- 2013 – In Re Skinner (Georgia)
 - Lawyer disciplined for posting personal and confidential information about client in response to client’s negative reviews on consumer website.
- 2013 Gwire v. Bloomberg (California)
 - Former client accuses lawyer Gwire of “horrific fraud” and gives summary of his “incredibly unethical history”
 - Gwire responds with post calling client “proven liar,” “mentally unbalanced,” and making references to his divorce file.

5

One Possible Response: Defamation Suit

- Pampattiwari v. Hinson et al. (2014 WL 943230, Ct. App. Ga. Mar. 12, 2014)
 - Divorce lawyer responds to client’s online reviews calling her a “crook” and “extremely fraudulent” with a libel suit; $405,000 trial court verdict upheld on appeal
 - But beware the risks: the “Streisand effect,” the odds of client statements being protected opinions, potential anti-SLAPP implications, etc.

6

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Dealing with Digital Detractors: What You Need to Know About Responding to Negative Online Reviews

Also available as part of the eCourse

First Friday Ethics \(February 2022\)

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 2021 First Friday Ethics (July 2021) session

"Dealing with Digital Detractors: What You Need to Know About Responding to Negative Online Reviews"