The Rule of Orderliness

- “It is a well-settled Fifth Circuit rule of orderliness that one panel of our court may not overturn another panel’s decision, absent an intervening change in the law, such as by a statutory amendment, or the Supreme Court, or our en banc court. Indeed, even if a panel’s interpretation of the law appears flawed, the rule of orderliness prevents a subsequent panel from declaring it void.” Jacobs v. Nat’l Drug Intel. Ctr., 548 F.3d 375, 378 (5th Cir. 2008).
- “[W]hen two published panel decisions conflict, we must follow the earlier.” Id.

How Far Does the Rule of Orderliness Reach?

- Prior Precedent: Nieto Hernandez v. Holder
 - Issue: Was the TX offense of felon in possession of a firearm an aggravated felony as defined by federal law?
 - Dependent on whether TX offense fell within the description in 18 U.S.C. § 922(g) (federal felon in possession of firearm statute)
 - Defendant conceded that Texas's “felon” and “firearm” elements were identical to the federal substantive elements in § 922(g).
 - Defendant argued instead that the Texas offense of felony in possession of a firearm was not an aggravated felony because state law did not contain an “interstate commerce” or jurisdictional element.
 - The panel rejected the argument and held that the TX offense was an aggravated felony.
