How many U.S. adults have a criminal record? Depends on how you define it...

By the FBI's standard, 73.5 million people in the United States (29.5% of the population) had a criminal record as of June 30, 2017.

30% of the licensees have to consider whether their arrest or criminal disposition will affect their occupational license.*

If we assume that the licensed community is arrested at about the same level as the general population....

Chapter 53, Tex. Occ. Code

If your client:

1. Is thinking of getting an education with an eye toward applying for an occupational license but has a criminal history,
2. Is applying for an occupational license but has a criminal history,
3. Is already licensed but is facing possible criminal charges,
4. Lost their occupational license and would like to regain it,

Chapter 53 is where you should start.
