Individual Donors Have New Priorities... And There are Fewer of Them

- Individuals still give the most.
  - Giving from individuals is down about 15% over the past 20 years and only 50% of American households gave a gift to nonprofits in 2018 (down from 66% in 2000).
  - However, individuals still make up the lion's share of total contributions over the last five years (67%).
- There may be fewer individual donors, but they are giving larger gifts and using different, more sophisticated giving vehicles.
  - Mega gifts by individuals totaled $14 billion in 2022 and represented about 5% of all giving by individuals.
  - Up to 15% of all individual gifts are made out of Donor-Advised Funds.
- Driven by the example of MacKenzie Scott and the rise of trust-based philanthropy, the relationship between donors and organization is changing. More donors are understanding that unrestricted gifts that can be directed by the organization (instead of donor wishes) can make a larger impact.

Planned Giving and the Great Wealth Transfer

- Organizations are anticipating the Great Transfer of Wealth in the next twenty years.
- $30 - $70 trillion dollars is expected to transfer from Baby Boomers to younger generations.
- Proactive fundraisers are significantly focused on securing planned gifts now.
  - This transfer offers two opportunities: securing planned gifts from Baby Boomers...and cultivating new major donors amongst the recipients of this new wealth (Gen X, Millennials, and Gen Z)
  - While Baby Boomers may still be leading in total dollars given, the huge recent surge from Millennials should not be ignored.
