

What is a crisis?

- Any disruptive and unexpected event that threatens to harm an organization, its stakeholders, or the general public
- From a PR standpoint: An event that attracts negative media coverage, a negative social media post, and hinders normal business activity

Examples of crises

- Executive is publicly accused of sexual misconduct
- A workplace shooting
- · Recall of a defective product
- · Your food sends customers to the hospital
- A strike or lockout
- Government investigation
- Data breach affecting customers and/or employees

Who's ready for a crisis?

- According to the Institute for Crisis Management, only half of organizations worldwide have developed a crisis plan.
- Possible impediments:
 - Expense (It costs money)
 - Time (It takes effort)
 - Denial (It won't happen to us)
 - · Fear of the unknown
 - Busy with other things

Be prepared — with a plan

- Think of it as an insurance policy: You may never need it, but if a crisis strikes, you'll be happy to have it
- It will boost your reputation among stakeholders as being responsible and ready to respond
 - You can say: "we had a plan, employees were trained on what to do, and they followed our plan."
- A plan will help navigate a crisis before it damages your organization's good name or bottom line

We Have Seen Specific Plan Examples:

- Active Shooter Response Policy
 - DHS resource at: https://www.cisa.gov/sites/default/files/publications/active-shooter-how-to-respond-2017-508.pdf

California/OSHA Sample Workplace Violence Prevention Plan

- https://www.dir.ca.gov/dosh/Workplace-Violence.html
- On July 1, California employers are required to have a plan
- · Must provide training when implemented, and annually
- · Requires and incident log

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary (utcle.org/elibrary)

Title search: Code Red: What You Need in Your Crisis Management Playbook

Also available as part of the eCourse Code Red: What You Need in Your Crisis Management Playbook

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 46th Annual Corporate Counsel Institute session "Code Red: What You Need in Your Crisis Management Playbook "