

Presented:
The University of Texas School of Law
35TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE
ON IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY LAW

October 19-21, 2011
Austin TX

Finding What You Need To Practice Immigration Law

Eugene J. Flynn

Author contact information:
Eugene J. Flynn
EUGENE J. FLYNN, P.C.
Dallas, TX

eiflynnlaw@gmail.com
214-821-1661

Preface

This paper is an update of the papers included in the 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2010 UT Immigration Conference materials. If you have any of those papers, throw them away. Over half the URLs change every year and this year was no exception.

Introduction

In 1978 I was a law clerk in the Law Offices of Wallace Heitman. He was one of the first Certified Specialists in Immigration and Nationality Law in Texas. One of the assignments he gave me was to put together a “Law Clerk’s Manual” for Immigration Law. The first part of that manual dealt with what was to be checked on a regular basis to see to it that we had the most up-to-date information.

Many prominent individuals in our field, including Steve Ladik and Judge Glenn McPhaul, had the joy of laboriously turning the pages of the Federal Register, F.Supp., F2d, the United States Code, Congressional and Administrative News (USCCAN), and many other publications to discover what was new. There was basically one service available in those days, Interpreter Releases, and it was slow to arrive in Dallas. Mr. Heitman wanted to have the most recent items on his desk, and it was up to the law clerk to give it to him.

That Law Clerk’s Manual is still valid today. The difference is that we do not have to run to a law library and turn pages. Now we can point and click and in some instances simply have our computer do it for us via RSS feeds, which we will discuss later, or receive updates automatically via e-mail.

Below I take you through what I do to keep up in this field. I do not recommend that you do all of the pointing and clicking personally. If your firm has one, a law clerk, or even a receptionist, can be trained to check the various sources and print or forward to you electronically what you would like to see and read. Perhaps you prefer to have an outside source prepare an electronic summary for you. Such is available, as noted below.

This presentation does not cover everything that is available on the web. My co-presenter, Carl Shusterman, will have the honor of attempting to do that.

Daily Review

Bright and early every morning I review my downloaded e-mails, check my RSS feeds and start to check key websites. Some of the e-mails and RSS feeds inform me of new postings on the web, including new Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA) decisions, new GAO Reports, newly published 5th Circuit Opinions and even that particular day's contents of the Federal Register. Further information on how to receive such e-mails will be discussed momentarily.

To give you an idea of what the sites look like, I have included a printout of a page of each site I discuss as an appendix to these materials. With some exceptions they are in what-you-see-is-what-you-get format.

One of the first sites I used to check in the morning was the American Immigration Lawyers Association (AILA) (Appendix 1) <http://www.aila.org/> (see discussion infra regarding receiving e-mail updates from AILA). Now I check it in the evening after the postings for the day have ended. If you are not a member, I encourage you to join, as only members can use this research tool.

AILA posts to their InfoNet site Service Center Processing Times, administrative and court cases, liaison minutes from meetings with numerous divisions of the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Labor, the Department of State and even the Social Security Administration.

I store everything posted on AILA InfoNet on my hard drive in searchable PDF format. If you do not have a full Acrobat program to save in PDF format, free programs are available. I use CutePDF Writer which is available for free at <http://cutepdf.com>. Acrobat Reader X has an excellent search feature which allows you to search all PDF files in a directory. Unfortunately, many older PDF files are in graphic format and are not searchable, requiring a separate index.

I save the items by date in annual subdirectories. For example, the first item posted to InfoNet on this first day of this conference would be named OCT19-01.PDF. It would be stored in the "data2011" subdirectory. I also store the summaries that AILA posts for all items in an index file. I include my file name when moving that day's items to my index file for easier retrieval.

Why save everything? Because AILA does not keep everything they post. Neither does the government. Often AILA will remove, for example, early versions of proposed legislation so as not to confuse the members as to what was enacted. Knowing that such is part of the legislative history of the particular statute, I prefer to keep the material, as it might be useful. See e.g. In re Pedro Rodriguez-Rodriguez, 22 I&N Dec. 911, 1003 (BIA 1999) (Guendelsberger, dissenting).

I have not destroyed all my old hard copies as yet. Not too long ago an AILA member was seeking a case I summarized for the old AILA Monthly Mailing back in 1994. A reprint of the case was still listed as available on AILA InfoNet. Needless to say AILA no longer had the case, but I did. I scanned it and sent it to AILA as a graphic. They converted it to a searchable format and posted it to InfoNet. Hopefully, someday, maybe we will have all such immigration legal history stored electronically.

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Finding What You Need: Practice Tips for Immigration Lawyers on How to Find Key Statutes, Forms, Regulations, Governmental Memoranda, Manuals and More

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 35th Annual Immigration and Nationality Law session

"Finding What You Need: Practice Tips for Immigration Lawyers on How to Find Key Statutes, Forms, Regulations, Governmental Memoranda, Manuals and More"