

PRESENTED AT

31st Annual
LLCs, LPs and Partnerships

July 13-15, 2022
Austin, Texas

Model Company Agreements
For Closely Held LLCs

Cliff Ernst
Elizabeth S. Miller

Author contact information:

Cliff Ernst
McGinnis Lochridge LLP
Austin, Texas
cernst@mcginnislaw.com
512-495-6012

PROF. ELIZABETH S. MILLER
M. Stephen and Alyce A. Beard
Chair in Business and Transactional Law
Baylor University School of Law
Waco, Texas
elizabeth_miller@baylor.edu
(254) 710-6583

Model Company Agreements For Closely Held LLCs

Table of Contents

	Page
I. Introduction	1
II. Company Agreements Generally	2
III. The Model Agreements.....	3
A. Introductory Paragraph	3
B. Article 1: Formation.....	5
C. Article 2: Members and Membership Interests.....	7
D. Article 3: Management of the Company, Meetings and Voting	18
E. Article 4: Capital Contributions.....	24
F. Article 5: Taxation and Allocations.....	27
G. Article 6: Distributions	28
H. Article 7: Bank Account, Books of Account, Reports and Fiscal Year.....	28
I. Article 8: Transfer Restrictions and Push Pull Provisions.....	32
J. Article 9: Exculpation, Scope of Duties, Indemnification and Advancement.....	35
K. Article 10: Winding Up	47
L. Article 11: Miscellaneous Provisions and Definitions.....	49
IV. Conclusion	50
Appendix A – Model Company Agreement for Manager-Managed, Multi-Member Limited Liability Company
Appendix B – Model Company Agreement for Member-Managed, Multi-Member Limited Liability Company
Appendix C – Model Company Agreement for Single Member Limited Liability Company

Model Company Agreements For Closely Held LLCs

Cliff Ernst
Partner
McGinnis Lochridge LLP
Austin, Texas

Elizabeth S. Miller
Professor of Law
M. Stephen and Alyce A. Beard Chair
in Business and Transactional Law
Baylor Law School
Waco, Texas

I. Introduction.

Records maintained by the Texas Secretary of State indicate that the limited liability company has become the entity of choice among Texas organizations. The office of the Texas Secretary of State reports that of the 381,789 certificates of formation filed for domestic for-profit entities in 2021, 350,146 (or approximately 92%) were limited liability companies, and of the 284,463 certificates of formation filed for domestic for-profit entities in 2020, 257,294 (or approximately 90%) were limited liability companies.¹

It is often stated that one of the benefits of organizing an entity as a limited liability company is that this form of entity offers the owners and governing authority of the entity the flexibility to agree to provisions for the economic terms and governance that are more flexible than available with respect to a corporation. This is true, and indeed limited liability companies are sometimes used to create highly complex structures with multiple classes of ownership interests and highly customized provisions regarding management and governance of the entity, including complicated provisions for voting and management succession. However, given the large number of entities now being created as limited liability companies in Texas and other states, it is likely that many of these new entities are not entities with complex structures with multiple classes of ownership and complex bureaucracies for governance. Statistics compiled by the Internal Revenue Service show that for the tax years 2017 and 2018 (the most recent years for which statistics are currently available), approximately 66% of the S corporation returns are for single-shareholder

¹ The office of the Texas Secretary of State has provided to the authors the following information about numbers of certificates of formation and initial LLP registrations filed for domestic entities:

	2020	2021
For-Profit Corporations	22,249	25,102
Professional Corporations	518	565
Professional Associations	268	254
Limited Liability Companies	257,294	350,146
Limited Partnerships	4,134	5,722
Limited Liability Partnerships	454	478

S corporations and approximately 25% have only two shareholders.² The Internal Revenue Service does not publish similar statistics for limited liability companies, and single-member limited liability companies are typically disregarded entities that do not file tax returns. But if one assumes that most limited liability companies are closely held entities, then by analogy, it is likely that a large portion of limited liability companies have one or two owners. Therefore, it is much more likely that practitioners will find themselves needing to draft simple limited liability company agreements suitable for entities with one or two or a very few owners, rather than more complex documents.

The purpose of this paper is to present and discuss models for governing agreements for limited liability companies when a simple structure is needed.

II. Company Agreements Generally.

As with other filing entities under the Texas Business Organizations Code (“BOC”),³ a Texas limited liability company is created by the filing of a certificate of formation meeting the requirements of BOC §3.005 and §3.010. The existence of the company commences when the filing of the certificate takes effect as provided in BOC Chapter 4.⁴

The BOC does not expressly require that a Texas limited liability company have a company agreement, but it is difficult to conceive of a situation in which there would not be some skeletal agreement of the members regarding the conduct and affairs of the limited liability company.⁵ The statute expressly recognizes that a company agreement may be written or oral.⁶ However, it is obviously advisable for a limited liability company to have a written company agreement to minimize uncertainty and disputes about the ownership and management of the entity.

Before amendments to the BOC in 2021, the statute in effect provided that the certificate of formation controlled in the event of a conflict between the language of the certificate of formation and the company agreement.⁷ The current statute does not provide for any hierarchy with respect to the certificate

² Table 9: Returns of Active Corporations, Form 1120S (2017) (2018), available at <https://www.irs.gov/statistics/soi-tax-stats-corporation-complete-report>

³ TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 1.001 et seq.

⁴ TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 3.001(c).

⁵ Inasmuch as the BOC recognizes oral as well as written company agreements, a course of dealing may reflect the company agreement of the members on some matters. Furthermore, any provision that may be contained in the company agreement may be included in the certificate of formation. TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 101.051(a). Even a very basic certificate of formation would seemingly constitute a company agreement as to certain items, such as the name of the company, the type of management (i.e., member-managed or manager-managed), and the identity of the initial members or managers.

⁶ TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 101.001(1) (defining “company agreement” as “any agreement, written or oral, of the members concerning the affairs of a limited liability company”).

⁷ Before September 1, 2021, TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 101.052(d) stated: “The company agreement may contain any provisions for the regulation and management of the affairs of the limited liability company not inconsistent with law or the certificate of formation.” See Pinnacle Data Servs., Inc. v. Gillen, 104 S.W.3d 188 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2003, no pet.) (holding voting provision in limited liability company’s articles of organization controlled over conflicting voting provision contained in the company’s regulations). Effective September 1, 2021, the words “or the certificate of formation” were deleted from Section 101.052(d). S.B. 1203, 87th Leg., eff. Sept. 1, 2021. Under TEX. BUS. ORGS. CODE ANN. § 101.051(a), any provision that may be contained in the company agreement may alternatively be included in the certificate of formation. Because BOC § 101.052(d) has never been listed among the provisions that cannot be waived or modified in the company agreement, the statute arguably has

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Model Company Agreements for Closely Held LLCs

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 31st Annual LLCs, LPs and Partnerships session
"Updated Model LLC Agreements"