

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE BUSINESS DATA BREACH

*The University of Texas School of Law
31st Annual Technology Law Conference*

May 24, 2018

Leslie C. Thorne
haynesboone

UT LAW CLE Continuing
Legal Education

Friday Afternoon, 4 P.M.

UT LAW CLE Continuing
Legal Education

The Call

UT LAW

CLE

Continuing
Legal Education

Potential Threats

- Contractors or service providers
- Employees/Former employees
- Competitors
- State-sponsored activity
- Hacktivists

UT LAW

CLE

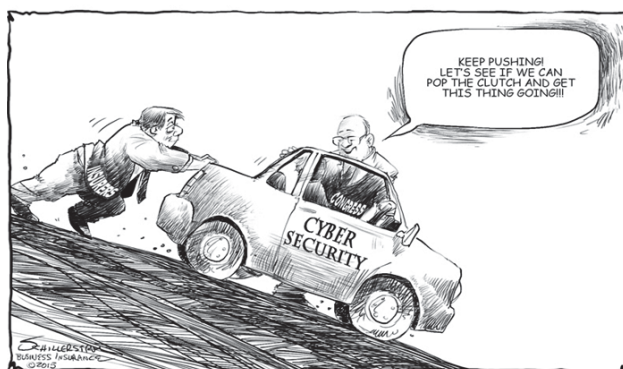

Continuing
Legal Education

Minimizing Risks (Non-Technical)

- Stay apprised of threats (e.g., ISACs)
- Conduct a data inventory
- Develop appropriate policies and procedures
- Train employees on security issues
- Conduct tabletop exercises
- Manage vendor risks
 - Due diligence
 - Contract provisions
 - Training and audit

Minimizing Risks (Technical)

- Patching and vulnerability management
- Penetration testing
- Detailed logging
- Firewalls
- Anti-Virus tools
- Encryption
- Behavior analytics

Find the full text of this and thousands of other resources from leading experts in dozens of legal practice areas in the UT Law CLE eLibrary \(utcle.org/elibrary\)

Title search: Special Considerations for the Business Data Breach

First appeared as part of the conference materials for the 31st Annual Technology Law Conference session
"Special Considerations for the Business Data Breach"