Trends and Issues in Physician-Hospital
Contractual Arrangements

Hospitals and physicians continue to actively explore and enter into contractual arrangements to maintain and enhance their market position. As hospitals and physicians prepare and respond to commercial and governmental healthcare reform, these arrangements are becoming more critical and creative. This session identifies these various arrangements (and when they are used) and also provides the physician and hospital perspective on specific contractual provisions that ensure financial and operational success and minimize liability.

Hal S. Katz, Brown McCarroll, L.L.P., Austin, TX
Colbey B. Reagan, Waller Lansden Dortch &
Davis, LLP, Nashville, TN

Traditional and Emerging Healthcare Network Models

The VIX™ Index, also called the "fear index," is a popular measure of stock market volatility. If one were to apply the VIX™ to healthcare, it is likely that the "fear index" related to the unknown never has been higher. Political turbulence, the continuing "economic winter," new payment initiatives and ever-changing alliances within the industry have created an environment where providers and payers continue to look at innovative ways to align themselves. Realignment of hospital systems, provider-payer partnerships, accountable care organizations, co-management relationships and the like are increasingly common. This session reviews both traditional and emerging alignment models as well as the legal issues attendant thereto.

Roger D. Strode, Foley & Lardner LLP, Chicago, IL

11:45 a.m. .75 hr

Organized Chaos: Making Sense of Healthcare Services M&A

The pace of consolidation among healthcare service providers has been robust with no signs of letting up while successful deal execution is becoming increasingly complex. An overview of the recurring healthcare M&A planning, due diligence, documentation and execution issues.

Linas J. Griksis, Polsinelli Shughart PC, Chicago, IL
Jonathan K. Henderson, Polsinelli Shughart PC,
Dallas, TX

The Prosecution of an In-House Corporate Counsel—A Cautionary Tale and Lessons Learned

In 2010, Lauren Stevens, an in-house lawyer at GlaxoSmithKline (GSK), was charged with making false statements and obstruction in connection with responding to a voluntary request for information from the FDA in 2002. GSK formed a team of in-house lawyers, including Ms. Stevens, and hired Mark Brown, a former FDA Associate Chief Counsel and partner at King & Spalding, to help the company respond to the FDA's request. In May 2011, after the government presented its case, the presiding judge dismissed the case, acquitting Ms. Stevens of all charges. Ms. Stevens and Mr. Brown share this cautionary tale and several important lessons for in-house counsel, outside counsel and company executives.

Operations and Medicaid

The Texas Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC) is fundamentally transforming the Texas Medicaid and uncompensated care programs. Medicaid Managed Care is expanding to the entire state and new funding pools have been created. This transformation is a substantial undertaking for both the HHSC and providers and it affects most everyone in the Texas healthcare industry. HHSC leaders explain and analyze these program changes, provide an update on the status of the changes and the lessons learned so far, and preview what the future may hold.
