GOTTSCHALK V. BENSON (S. CT. 1972)

- The patent claimed "converting binary-coded decimal (BCD) numerals to pure binary numerals."
 - "Here the 'process' claim is so abstract and sweeping as to cover both known and unknown uses of the BCD to pure binary conversion."
- The practical effect of patenting the formula ... would be to patent an idea and "would wholly pre-empt the mathematical formula."
- "Phenomena of nature, though just discovered, mental processes, and abstract intellectual concepts are not patentable, as they are the basic tools of scientific and technological work."

GOTTSCHALK V. BENSON (S. CT. 1972)(CONT'D)

- '(w)hile a scientific truth, or the mathematical expression of it, is not patentable invention, a novel and useful structure created with the aid of knowledge of scientific truth may be.' That statement followed the longstanding rule that '(a)n idea of itself is not patentable.'
- "If these programs are to be patentable...action by the Congress is needed."
