Texas Case Law on STRs—Cities

Zaatar v. City of Austin (Austin Court of Appeals 2019)

- Austin passed ordinance banning, in part, short-term rental of non-homestead single-family residences
- Established Property Right: Court found that short term rental was an “established practice,” and a “historically allowable use” in Austin, and that STR owners had invested “significant time and money into the property”
- Ordinance was found to serve “minimal, if any public interest” while “having a significant impact on property owners’ substantial interest in well-recognized property interest”
- Elimination of non-owner occupied STRs was “unconstitutionally retroactive”
